A HISTORICAL NOTE ON THE HOLODOMOR

The Holodomor - death by starvation imposed on millions of Ukrainians during 1932-33 - was the centerpiece of the Soviet Union’s ruthless campaign against nationally conscious Ukrainians opposed to Stalinism. Besides decimating Ukraine’s political, intellectual, cultural, and religious leadership, Joseph Stalin’s communist regime deliberately starved Ukraine’s majority population, its farmers.

After deporting Ukraine’s most successful farming families, Stalin forced those remaining to surrender their property and join government-run farms. Given impossible grain quotas, the farmers resisted, and militias eventually stripped households of any food. Countless villages were blocked off from receiving any goods, and the borders of Ukraine were sealed, so that the people were trapped into a slow and torturous death by starvation. Meanwhile, grain and other food products were exported to the outside world.

At the height of the famine in 1933, 28,000 Ukrainians were dying each day.

The Soviet Union denied that a murderous famine had ever taken place and compelled its subject Ukrainians to live this lie. To speak of the famine was a crime. Most of the world learned of the Holodomor only after the Soviet Union’s collapse in 1991.

Raphael Lemkin, who invented the term genocide and was the initiator of the United Nations Convention on Genocide, stated that the Soviet attack on Ukraine "is a case of genocide, of the destruction, not of individuals only, but of a culture and a nation."
